

Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures: Policy on the CLEP exam

Drafted by the departmental curriculum committee and adopted March 12, 2004.

The Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures grants academic credit of up to four semesters for proficiency in several languages other than English as demonstrated on the CLEP language tests. Credit is not granted to native speakers and foreign language speakers who received their secondary or postsecondary education in the target language.