Arts in Education

Discover how to integrate dance, music, theatre, and visual art into the elementary classroom! Explore reading, math, science, social studies, and other subjects as they are enhanced by the arts!

Learning/teaching through the arts often reaches students who struggle with the more traditional modes of learning and supports creativity in the classroom.

The intent of Arts in Education is to enhance student learning through the arts. Teachers are not asked to teach dance, music, theatre, or visual arts, but to teach reading, math, writing, science, history, and other subjects through the vehicle of the arts.

program director

Dr. Jeannette Fresne received degrees in Music Education from The University of Texas at Austin, Texas State University, and Arizona State University. Having experiences in Texas and Arizona as an elementary general music teacher and high school choral director, Dr. Fresne taught at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill before joining the faculty of the University of South Alabama in 2002. In addition to arts integration and music education, she researches the area of seven-shape, shape note music. Locally, she serves on the board of the Mobile Arts Council. Dr. Fresne conducts workshops and clinics throughout the United States.

assistant program director

Dr. Paige V. Baggett has earned degrees in Early Childhood Education and Instructional Design and Development; she has taught all academic content areas as an elementary school teacher in Mobile County Public Schools. At the University of South Alabama Dr. Baggett has been an instructor for literacy courses. She currently teaches Art Education courses for elementary education majors and supervises student teachers. Dr. Baggett presents research and conducts workshops at various conferences.

"Children motivated in the arts develop attention skills and strategies for memory retrieval that also apply to other subject areas."
