About German

German is an official language of Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium, Liechtenstein and Luxembourg. It is spoken in many European countries as a second language and is the third most taught and translated language in the world. There are more than 100 million native German speakers.

German Learning Tips

- German pronunciation and spelling are regular and predictable.
- There are three categories of German nouns: masculine, feminine, and neuter.
- German nouns are always capitalized, regardless of where they occur in a sentence. For example: Der Mann Laft.
- Many verbs have two parts: The first comes after the subject and another comes at the end of the sentence. For example: Der Mann hat einen Apfel gegessen.
- The alphabet contains all the letters of the Roman alphabet and may include the letter B.
- Vowels in some words have a mark written above them, a pair of dots called an umlaut, will show you how to pronounce the word, and it may distinguish one word from another.
- German has both formal and informal ways to address others, depending on the age of the speaker and his/her relationship to the person or persons being addressed.
