

Accessing CITI Training

In order to access the CITI Human Subjects Protection training course, you will need to create an account in the CITI program if you do not already have one.

Instructions for New CITI Account Registration:

- Go to the CITI training website.
- Click on the “Register” button located on the top right of the page.
- Complete the steps in the registration form as follows:
 - Step 1: Enter “University of South Alabama”
 - Step 2: Enter your name and USA email address. You MUST use your USA email address as your primary email to facilitate automatic notification of training completion to IRB staff.
 - Step 3 through Step 6: Complete the requested information.
 - Step 7: There are two educational tracks for the Basic Human Subjects Research Course: Social and Behavioral Research or Biomedical Research. To receive maximal benefit, you should choose the track most closely related to the research in which you are involved.
- If your registration is complete, click on “Finalize Registration.”

Once your account is created, or if you already have an account, you may log in and select the training course most appropriate to your area of research.
