The individual must receive the consent form as well as the information sheet.

"There are risks of loss of privacy, getting insured, being employed, and stigmatization (treated badly due to your genetic testing results). There are some protections afforded by the Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act (GINA). For a detailed listing of protections, please read the GINA information sheet that has been printed for you and that you have received with this consent. You can also find The Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act at <http://www.genome.gov/Pages/PolicyEthics/GeneticDiscrimination/GINAInfoDoc.pdf>
